Legborne, May 26.

WE have received Letters from Barcelona, by an English Ship which left Mataro the 20th of this Month, containing the following News.

The Hope which the Emperour has given the Barceloners, that he will Succour them as much as is in his Power, serves mightily to keep up their Courage, and to confirm them in the Resolution of defending themselves to the last Extremity: It does not appear hitherto, that their Loss of the Cloyster of the Capuchins can shake them, no more than all the Preparations of the Castillians for attacking the Place: They think themselves in a Condition to resist all the Spanish Forces, provided they be not seconded by those of France; the Spanish Army consisting but of 28000 Men, including the 16 Battalions of French Troops. There is a greater Number of French Troops in the Lampourdan, but they will not make any Motion till the Arrival of the Duke of Berwick. The Regiment of Caraffa, which was in Garrison at Cervera, has been obliged to retire to the Camp of the Castillians: They were much harrassed in their March by the Garrison of Cardona, the Governour of which has already 400 Spanish Officers Prisoners. The Marquis de Thouy, who was at Calef, has likewise been obliged to abandon that Post, and narrowly escaped being taken himself; having been cut off by 300 Miquelets, while 3000 others attacked him. General Bracamonte has likewise abandoned his Post at Vich; so that the Spanish Troops, who have laid in Ashes about 50 Towns or Villages, are not at present possessed of any Town. The Peasants, driven to Despair by these violent Executions, have retaken Arms, and made themselves Masters of the Passages, to prevent the carrying of any thing to the Camp. 'Twas on the 16th that the Castillians possessed themselves of the fortified Cloyster of the Capuchins, after having battered it from the 12th with 9 Guns. 'Tis said they employed 3000 Men in that Attack, and lost about 700 in it, among them 1 Collonel, 2 Lieutenant-Collonels, and several subaltern Officers; most of the Besieged retired timely to the Cloyster of Jesus, leaving only a Lieutenant-Collonel and 15 Soldiers to cover their Retreat, who were made Prisoners. The 11th of this Month, 40 Vessels from Majorca entred Barcelona, laden with Ammunition and Provisions: Since which 9 other Vessels entred.

Extract of a Letter from Rheims, June 4.

THE Pope's Bull not having been accepted by the Faculty of Theology of Rheims, in the Assembly held the 12th of May, because 9 Voices voted against 7 for deferring its being received; a new Assembly was summoned to be held the 23d of the same Month, at the Request of some particular Doctors who had been prevailed upon to demand it, and to protest against the former as null. The Affair was again taken into Deliberation on the said 23d, and the Bull by the Majority of 17 Voices against 9 was registred, yet with Restriction and Reference to the Explications contained in the Pastoral Instruction drawn up by the Assembly of the Clergy, and to the Modifications made by the Parliament. The 9 Doctors who in the first Assembly had voted for accepting it, till the Opinion of the Church about it should appear clearly by an Unanimous Consent, persisted in their Opinion. This Form of Receiving the Bull not satisfying the Court, the King caused an Order to be sent to M. Lescapier Intendant of Champagne, to repair in Person with all Expedition to Rheims, to assist at the Assembly of the Faculty of Theology the 1st of June, in the Quality of Commissioner specially deputed for seeing the Bull received purely and simply. The Intendant repaired to Rheims the 31st of May, and immediately sent for the Dean, the Syndick, and the three Antients, to communicate to them the Orders which he had received. He talked afterwards in private with the Doctors who had voted for deferring the accepting of the Bull. There was not any Assembly to be held the 1st of June, but the Intendant who came for that purpose, expressly ordered it to be assembled. He spoke in it with great Vehemence and Insinuation, and yet with great Civility: And not opposing an Expedient that was proposed to register in another Assembly the Pastoral Instruction, the Arrêt of Parliament, and such other Pieces as should be thought fit, provided that in this Assembly the Bull was received purely and simply, pursuant to the King's Intention: This Expedient was approved by the Majority, and the Conclusion for accepting the Bull purely and simply, was drawn up to the Mind of the Court. There were only six Doctors who would not assent to this, and whose Sentiment the Intendant drew up in much the following Terms: 'We most humbly beseech your Majesty to be pleased to permit us to forbear accepting the Bull, till by an unanimous or almost an unanimous Consent, of all or of almost all the Bishops, in a Council, or without a Council, the Mind of the Church appear to us evidently and clear, to which we shall then submit without Modification and without any Reserve.
